SECTION-B (Descriptive Questions)

1. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Childhood is a time when there are few responsibilities to make life difficult. If a child has good parents, he is fed, looked after and loved, whatever he may do. It is improbable that he will ever again in his life be given so much without having to do anything in return. In addition, life is always presenting new things to the child. A child finds pleasure in playing in the rain or in the snow. His first visit to seaside is a marvelous adventure. But a child has his pains; he is not free to do what he wishers to; he is continually being told not to do things being punished. His life, therefore, not perfectly happy.

Questions:

(i) How is childhood?

When most of us think of forests, we think of trees. True, trees are the most prominent form of life in a forest. But there is much more to a forest than the eye can see. Each forest is a growing, changing community made up of different plants and animals that interact with each other in a variety of ways. Associated with trees are thousands of other kinds of plants-shrubs. Vines, leaves, herbs and ferns. These use trees for support, for shade and for moisture to grow.

Questions:

(i) Which is the most prominent from of life in a forest?

(ii) What is a forest made up of?

(iii) Who all are associated with trees and for what?

(iv) Make sentences with: Community. Forest.

2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow in your words:

Without water no creature can survive. In desert regions the greatest threat to life is drying up. But many creatures are able to make use of the little water that exists in arid areas. One of nature's masterpieces among creatures equipped to cope with desert life is the hardy Camel. Stories range to desert lands far and wide about feats of remarkable endurance of Camels. It is said that Camels can cover a distance of about 800 miles in eight days through continuous travel without taking a single drop of water. The popular belief that Camels store water in the humps is misleading in a way, water is indeed stored there but in the form of fat.

Questions:

(i) What is the greatest threat to life in desert regions?

(ii) Why is the Camel considered as a masterpiece in deserts?

(iii) What type of stories range far and wide about Camels?

(iv) Describe the reality about the storage of water by Camels.
